FOOTBALL SEASON, 1942—43

The question of matches is becoming more acute as there are practically no pre-war amateur sides available. School matches were reduced to Bradfield, both home and away, and fortunately Malvern has reappeared in our orbit. The first six weeks were unimpressive and the chief features were drawn contests with Bradfield both home and away. Various Army sides appeared and talked a good deal, and did not appear to appreciate a robust defence. Then came a break of a fortnight owing to the local 'invasion,' and the team immediately improved and continued to do so till the end of the season. The climax with a 6—1 victory over Malvern at Harrow. The defence always played hard and often rather dangerously employed sliding tackles. Whitfield in goal was almost extremely calm and played better than he appeared to. The backs, Metcalfe and Watson, were formidable. Metcalfe developed into a really good player. Watson had one bad patch when his positioning went to pieces. His kicking was always powerful. Of the halves Holder was disappointing, though he played intelligently; Sword was a tower of strength at centre-half, and made full use of his height; Rimell's appearance immediately improved the whole team. He should be really good one day. The brains of the forwards was Seager, who produced most of the openings. Dalgety got quite a lot of goals by appearing at the right place at the right moment. Godden was very temperamental; he played well at times and has a quick shot, but was often most unenterprising. Stevenson got through an immense amount of work but missed a lot of goals. Spratt often performed well at outside-right, especially against Malvern.

After Christmas, the filling of the gaps was a difficult business, especially owing to illness. However, the various combinations remained unbeaten and included in their victims Eton (4—3) and Winchester (2—1).

Among the newcomers the most promising were Saager (eventually right-half), Godden mi., Elliott came into his own at back and often played brilliantly. The responsibilities of captain steadied Watson, who quite recovered form. Vlasto did well in his one appearance against Winchester. Saager and Whitfield received 1st XI colours after Christmas.

CHARTERHOUSE v HURSTPIERPOINT

At Home. March 1st. Won 6—1.

(Dalgety 5, Dix-Perkin)
Charterhouse were superior in all departments of the game. The forwards, brilliantly led by Dalgety, were too much for the Hurstpierpoint defence, while our defence was too strong for the Hurstpierpoint forwards to be dangerous.

CHARTERHOUSE v WELLINGTON

On Green. March 6th. Lost 1—5.

(Amberg)
Charterhouse had more of the game than the score suggests, and goals should have been scored before half-time. The Charterhouse defence did not mark closely enough, and Wellington gave an admirable lesson in how to swing the ball about. Their taking of corners, from which they scored two goals, was a fine art.

After the match P. K. Drury, J. L. B. Edwards, D. J. L. Dix-Perkin, A. B. Whitehorn and G. R. W. Carter received colours.

CHARTERHOUSE v CRANLEIGH

Away. March 13th. Lost 0—3.

The forwards could not get moving on a very fast ground, and in the circle missed many easy chances. The defence was much better than last week, Carter playing well in goal.
