In the early days of the Great War he was a Red Cross Commissioner in France, and later raised and commanded the 21st Service Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment. Placed on the retired list in 1915, he served in the Military Intelligence Department at the War Office from 1916 to 1919. He was mentioned again in despatches and in 1919 was awarded the C.M.G. SCHOOL SOCIETIES AND ENTERTAINMENTS

HOUSE SINGING

The readers of this review will be of two classes: those for whom it will be a melancholy exhumation, and those for whom it will be a pleasant retrospect. Of the latter the first should deservedly be Pageites, Saunderites and Verites. From Pageites we have grown to expect a superlative response to habitually superlative training, and their performance of the Agincourt song, with its triumphant cry of mediæval chivalry, as well as their robust unison song, came well up to previous standards. Saunderites' 'Just as the Tide was Flowing' upheld the best traditions of that house, of our own Vaughan Williams and of English vocal music in general. Their unison song, too, deserves praise, particularly for its three gallant soloists. Verites, placed third by the outspoken Miss Chesterfield, showed an equally intelligent response to sound training.

Among the rest, as agreed in the rules, we will not discriminate; many of them showed patches of real Art, as Bodeites, whose control of volume was so impressive, and Hodgsonites, whose Sumer is Icumen in was a pleasant moment, although the important pedal bass was somewhat lacking. Robinites competed with one of the happiest of Mr. Scott's works, now expected features of these competitions and surely deserving of more than the one brief performance which they usually enjoy.

Of the less fortunate competitors one house at least may find the following quotation from 'As You Like It' relevant (if slightly distorted):

JUDGE: Truly, young gentleman, though there was no great matter in the ditty, yet the note was very untuneable.
LEFT-HANDED CONDUCTOR: You are deceived, madam; we kept time, we lost not our time.

JUDGE: By my troth yes; I count it but time lost to hear such a foolish song. God be wi' you; and God mend your voices!

We should like to thank Miss Chesterfield for the spirited and entertaining way in which she performed her function, for the very sound advice which she lavished on us and for the trouble she took in coming down for the occasion.

O.C. DINNER AT BARI

Major A. C. Blair (W) sends an account of an O.C. Dinner held at Bari, Italy, on July 22nd. The appropriate toasts were duly honoured, and he as dinner secretary was instructed to convey to Charterhouse the good wishes of all present. These were :—

Capt. A. A. Birch, R.A. (G '35-'40); Major A. C. Blair, R.A. (W '21-'26); Capt. R. L. Brignall, Intelligence Corps (L '26-'30); Lieut.-Col. J. R. Cochrane, R.A. (L '18-'22); Capt. D. L. G. Joseph, R. Sigs. (V '09-'14); Lieut. J. R. Meredith Davies, Welsh Guards (G '35-'38); Lieut. E. F.

CRICKET

CHARTERHOUSE v CRANLEIGH

At Home. July 8th. Won by 4 wickets.

Despite the low scoring, this was a splendid match with plenty of good cricket.

With a pitch drying in patches Ashley decided to put Cranleigh in to bat. The weather was doubtful: if it kept fine the wicket would be dry after lunch, whereas if more rain came a wet wicket would be easier to play on than the patchy one about to be used.
